AMERICAN TEAM HAS SPLENDID CHANCE TO LIFT THE DAVIS CUP

Larned, McLoughlin and Wright Strongest Combination That Could Be Sent to Australia—Still a Chance of Men Playing Here—A Forecast of Form.

BY LAURENCE REDINGTON.

Now that the personnel of the Davis Cup challenge team has been definitely decided on after several weeks of backing and filling on the part of players and national association alike, Honolulu tennis men are showing a lively interest over the arrival of the mainland players here. It's almost certain, however, that those who have been looking forward to seeing Larned, the seven-time national champion; Maurice McLoughlin, the Coast lad who won the all-comers' at Newport this year, and Beals Wright in action on the local courts for any extended stay are doomed to disappointment. Had the dates for the international matches been fixed for Christmas week by the Australian association, as was first considered, the American players would probably have come across from San Francisco and spent several days here before sailing for the Antipodes, but as the earlier date has been chosen, the men will go through on the next Australian boat. This gives them but the fraction of a day here, but it is still possible that they will be glad of a chance to get the kinks of shipboard life out of them, and that an exhibition match of some sort can be arranged. The matter will be taken up by wireless a couple of days before the ship is due, so that all the details can be arranged and the matches properly advertised should the American cracks care to play here.

If Larned, Wright and McLoughlin make the trip, as last advised from Newport week he makes it a point to the Coast announced, and if Wilding morning. Afterwards he can usually be found putting around the shop, has been definitely stated, America's chances of lifting the cup are brighter than they have been since the Doherty took it back to England with them in 1903.

Challengers Are Strong.
The challenging team is probably the strongest that could be found in the American tennis world at the present time, and is probably as good a team as we have ever been able to turn out. Although there has been no announcement made as to pairings, it seems most reasonable to suppose that Larned and McLoughlin will represent America in singles, while McLoughlin and Wright will hook up as a doubles team. This for the reason that Larned, with all his marvelous ability as a singles player, has never particularly distinguished himself in doubles, this judged by the highest standards, of course. Larned and McLoughlin played as a team in one or two of the less important tournaments this year, but they did not meet with marked success.

The New Larned.
Larned is what might be termed brilliantly steady. The brilliancy was always his, but the steadiness has come only of recent years, and Larned's "off days" are a thing of the past. He is a marvelous tennis tactician, and before he steps on the courts for an important match he has a well-defined idea of just what line of attack or defense he will follow. Personally, he talks less "shop" than any of the rest of the first string men, and spends less of his time on the courts. He doesn't care particularly for the limelight, and while he is popular with both players and spectators, he doesn't mix much, and is more often to be found in a quiet corner of the grandstand with a friend or two than around the sidelines. He is rather mysterious about his practice matches, and while waiting to defend his title through the Newport week he makes it a point to play his condition sets in the very early morning. Afterwards he can usually be found putting around the shop, has been definitely stated, America's chances of lifting the cup are brighter than they have been since the Doherty took it back to England with them in 1903.

McLoughlin Improved.
McLoughlin is the slasher of the trio, but he, too, under Larned's coaching, has eased up considerably, and doesn't try to knock the cover off the ball every time, as was the case in his very young tennis days. The San Francisco youngster has become a sort of protégé of Larned of late, and the old reliable has taught him a number of the tricks of the game that were a closed book before this season. When McLoughlin first came into Eastern prominence he was apt to play the same style of game against all opponents, and he invariably worked himself too hard in doing it. Larned has coached him in his own specialty of observing the weaknesses and peculiarities of prospective antagonists, to the great improvement of his game and general style. McLoughlin is for tennis heart and soul, neither drinks nor smokes, and goes to bed before the bright lights are turned on.

Beals Wright plays a brand of tennis that is essentially different from both his team mates. He plays all ways to break up the other fellow's game and get him thoroughly on the run. He has a wicked assortment of cross-court chops, and a bundle of fast drives ready for the fellow who thinks he can get up to the net and do some fine execution overhead. His generalship is perhaps his strongest point, and he will instantly see the moment for a change of tactics, and isn't afraid to try experiments in this line.

Any of the three possible doubles combinations is in the nature of an experiment, but, as before mentioned, the Wright-McLoughlin team looks the best on paper.

DEDICATION STARTS SUNDAY

The largest invitation list that has ever been sent out by a local institution is being prepared by the special committee of the Y. M. C. A. appointed to handle it and will be finished this week. A large number of the letters were addressed Saturday night and will be dropped in the box this morning.

They are being sent out for dedication week which starts Saturday next and will last until the following Sunday. The new building will be formally turned over to the building committee on Wednesday night October 11 and they in their turn will make the transfer to President R. H. Trent. W. R. Castle, one of the charter organizers of 1869 will preside and a silver key will be used.

As already stated some time ago in the Bulletin, Bishop Restarick is to dedicate the building. He will be assisted by Rev. Peters of the Christian Church and Rev. R. E. Smith of the Methodist church. Some short addresses are to be made. Dr. W. C. Hobby will talk on what the institution means to the city; Dr. Doremus Scudder on what it means to the church and Secretary Paul Super on behalf of the employees.

The details of the program have already been published in the Bulletin.

The engagement is announced of Miss Ella Goo Kim, a teacher at the Kanuhama School, to Philip C. Wong, an employee of the Bank of Honolulu. No date is set for the wedding as yet.

The great One Hundred Thousand fellows are going to do something to Honolulu that will make all other towns run to cover. Sidewalks will be a feature of the work and Honolulu Construction will furnish the stone.

Mrs. F. Kelche was arrested on Saturday night for disturbing the peace out Waikiki way.

ISLAND MARKS MADE AT MEET

New Record for High Jump Made by Hans Fassoth—Fast Time in Sprints.

One Island record badly fractured, two others equalled, creditable marks in all track and field events, a large attendance and a full measure of clean sport was the sum total of the first field meet held by the Hawaiian association of the A. A. U. at Alexander Field Saturday afternoon.

The high jump record was the one to fall, and Hans Fassoth was the athlete to wipe it off the books and put a new one in its place. The Kauai lad cleared the bar at 5 ft. 8 1/2 in., and could probably have bettered this a trifle if he had been pressed, as he jumps in good form and seems to have an inch or so to spare in the balls of his feet. As it was, he had seven inches to spare over the second man, P. M. Friesell.

Bill Rice was the star of the sprints, and his friends think he can do the hundred in better than ten flat on a first-class track and conditions favorable.

Following are the results:
100-yard dash—Won by Rice; Manohia second, Fernandez third. Time, 10 1/5 sec.

One mile run—Dead heat between Gora and Nott. Time, 5 min. 24 3/5 sec.

440-yard dash—Won by Rice; Godfrey second, Kauli did not finish. Time, 56 4/5 sec.

220-yard dash—Won by Rice; Manohia second, Brenig third. Time, 22 1/5 sec.

220-yard low hurdles—Won by Friesell; Waiialele second. Time, 28 2/5 sec.

Pole vault—Won by Kauli; Hipsa and Noah tie for second. Height, 9 ft. 6 3/4 in. Noah won toss of coin for second place.

Running high jump—Won by Fassoth; Friesell second. Height, 5 ft. 9 1/2 in.

Running broad jump—Won by Friesell; Waiialele second. Distance, 20 ft. 4 in.

Putting 16-pound shot—Won by O'Sullivan; Friesell second. Distance, 36 ft. 3 in.

Throwing 16-pound hammer—Won by Kanar; Friesell second. Distance, 101 ft. 6 in.

Half-mile relay race—Won by Godfrey's team; Fernandez's team second. Time, 1 min. 45 3/5 sec.

EWA TENNIS MEN WIN INTER-CLUB CONTEST

The interclub tennis match played between Ewa and Aiea, on the latter's home courts, yesterday resulted in a one-sided victory for the visiting players. The Ewa men won a total of eleven out of twelve sets, but in some of the matches the scores were much closer than the final result indicates. Ewa won 74 games to their opponents' 20.

The entire day's play was given over to doubles, with an intermission for lunch, at which the Aiea men played hosts.

The scores:
McKeever - Berto beat Gibb - Gibb, 8-10, 6-1, 6-4.

Greenfield-Schmidt beat Nickelsen-Budde, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

W. Eklund-A. Renton beat Cowan-Ayau, 6-0, 6-0, 6-2.

McEachern - O'Dowda beat Duckworth-Halliday, 6-0, 6-3, 6-2.

CLIMATE KILLS SPEED FOR THE DISTANCE MEN SAYS FITZGERALD

Visiting Runner Says That Marathon Athletes Are Most Susceptible to Climatic Changes—Hopes for a Match With Local Man Soon.

It's an admitted fact that climatic changes "take it out" of athletes in all branches of sport, but the question as to which sport suffers the most in this respect has never been settled to the satisfaction of all the interested parties. The fighter, the rowing man, the ball player and the track athlete all claim that they get the short end of the deal when performing away from home.

Jimmie Fitzgerald, the Canadian runner who has been here a couple of months and who has hooked up with some of the local talent on the track during that time, is quite positive that distance runners get far the worst of it when subjected to decided changes of weather and environment. What Fitzgerald says carries some weight, for he has contested all over the world, and, besides, is a clear-headed man who pays more attention to the why and the wherefore of conditions than does the average athlete.

"Distance running is a highly hard grind at best," said Fitzgerald while discussing the climate question the other day. "Now a man has got to feel right on edge every moment of the time to do the Marathon or any of the middle distances, and a let down is almost fatal to success. Sprinters, weight men, vaulters and jumpers can make up to a certain extent for physical weakness by will power and nerve, but when it comes to reeling off the miles against time or against good men who feel at their best, it's quite another matter, and the man who feels tired before he starts is taking a terrible lot for the worst of it."

"And I think Honolulu is one of the hardest places for a foreign athlete to do himself justice in," continued Fitz. "In my own case I'm not as apt to be put out of condition by changes as most of the distance men are, but I feel more let down here than I have in any other place I've ever been to. This isn't in the way of an excuse, for I don't feel the need of making one for the races I've already run here or for the ones I hope to get soon, but it's a fact just the same. However, I begin to pick up a bit, and in a few weeks more expect to be myself again and to get back that snap and ginger that has been missing."

Fitzgerald is after a match race with Antone Kano, the old reliable of the Islands, but the latter seems to be as coy as a fighter about putting his name to an agreement. He is holding out for more remuneration, but the promoters believe that an understanding will be reached soon and the race, over the full Marathon distance, set for some time during the latter part of the month. On paper this sounds like an extremely interesting event, and with the awakened interest in the distance game here, the gate should make it well worth while from a business standpoint.

Tsukamoto, the speedy Japanese runner, is also on Jimmie's list, and if possible he will hook up for a race with him before leaving the Islands, and also for a return match with Soldier King.

Fitzgerald stacks up with the crack distance men of recent years, and when the Marathon boom hit the Pacific Coast some six months after the Olympic games brought Johnny Hayes into prominence, he met such cracks as the Olympic champion, St. Yves, Johnnie March, Dorando and the rest, and was a factor in all the events held in the Northwest.

Local sport lovers have shown a lively interest in the distance game, and if it is kept clean and not hippodromed, as was the case in the States when the craze was at its height, it would be an extremely good thing for island sport.

INTER-CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP IN DOUBLES PLAYED WEDNESDAY

Wednesday afternoon the much-disputed question of club supremacy between the Beretania and Pacific racket wielders will be settled, in doubles at any rate. Five teams from each club will fight it out on the courts, the club winning the greatest number of matches to carry off the cup and the glory.

Play, which will start promptly at 4 Wednesday afternoon, will be held at both clubs, three matches being fought at one club and two at the other. The allotment will be decided later.

Following are the teams:

Pacific.
W. P. Roth and W. F. Dillingham, No. 1; C. H. Cooke and R. A. Cooke, No. 2; J. T. Waterhouse and Dr. W. C. Hobdy, No. 3; F. E. Steere and G. H. Rutledge, No. 4.

Beretania.
A. L. Castle and D. W. Anderson, No. 1; A. M. Nowell and J. H. Barnes, No. 2; N. Doerr and F. North, No. 3; C. G. Bockus and R. Sinclair, No. 4; No. 5, unsettled.

JUDD MUST MAKE FIGHT FOR CUP

The Castle Cup tournament which opens at 4 o'clock next Thursday afternoon promises to be one of the most important of local sporting events this fall. The first tournament brought out the largest entry list ever recorded on the courts, and when the players line up on Thursday for the second there will be many matches to be played.

Under the conditions of this cup fixture, classes A and B in the handicap classifications already announced are not eligible to play in this series. The cup must be won twice to become the property of the victor. Lawrence Judd has won the cup once, and under the rules must play in the tournament, as it is a handicap affair without a challenge round.

Play will start Thursday at 4 o'clock on all the courts. Entries close at 5 o'clock tomorrow evening at E. O. Hall & Son's.

The cup was presented by A. L. Castle and is a very handsome trophy. Entries close tomorrow evening at E. O. Hall & Son's, and the tournament committee, consisting of A. L. Castle, G. C. Bockus, W. P. Roth, F. E. Steere and William Thompson will then hold a meeting to make the drawings and arrange any necessary changes in the ratings.
